90	6/10/2014	5:45 PM	Tues	Nancy	2	1	0	70	0	0					A young woman came down to the beach, crossed the rope and waded in the water while her male companion stood on the stairs and watched. I asked her to please stay behind the rope and she ignored me and then waved at me. When she left I tried to speak to her about flushing the seals/citation and she said the beach was public and she knew her rights and would return today and do it again. Rude. I'm just glad she didn't flush the seals.

When she emerged in about 20 minutes she sat near east cliffs but encouraged people to cross over the rope and play on the wet side. Many people and children followed her bidding.

															Zero seals on the beach, lots of people at water's edge, seals wanting to come up. So many footprints on the beach there. Asian woman with tiny girl kept trying to touch the pup that was trying to come up onto the beach and wouldn't listen to me or even look at me. So rude. What a nightmare it is just a few people cross the rope and then when the seals come up, the crowd just rushes across the rope to harass the seals. I shooed all the people behind the rope and kept others from crossing at the same time (the woman with the tiny girl wouldn't listen and neither would a guy and his girlfriend but finally group pressure from everyone who complied made them move behind the rope). And then 40 seals rushed up onto the beach. The pups just immediately shut their eyes and went to sleep. My heart swells with happiness seeing the pups sleep. When I left everyone was behaving and the seals were doing fine.

															Around 6:40 about 10 seals were in the pool, so I went on the beach and asked people to move to the east side and in 10 minutes everyone was behind the rope. 10 seals immediately hauled out on the rocks under the seawall and stayed. 3-4 babies hauled out in the beach but left quickly. The pup with the rope line came on the beach first and stayed the longest. By the time I was leaving at least 10 seals were in the pool about to haul out.

379	7/24/2014	7:30 PM	Thu	Terri	48	0	0	20	0	0					The seals were very skittish today but by 7:30 a group of about 20 seemed like they were going to be okay if nobody moved suddenly. We posted ourselves at the foot of the stairs when we got everyone behind the rope and asked each group of people coming down to please stay back as far as possible because the seals were coming in for the night and explained how important that was for the seals... ie Docenting stuff! There was one snorkler that Ondraya talked to before he went in and he promised to exit on another beach. As far as we know he did but not before he scared the poor lil guy off of the rocks by the wall.(no pic, sorry)

Everyone cooperated, except the Waggoner twins - who were running from the seaward side of the seawall to the western side of the Casa beach. No seals were flushed. At 7:45, the elephant seal came on the beach, and when I left at 8:15, there were 4 on the sand and 12 on the rocks.

A gigantic, huge male sea lion came and sat next to the pups on the rock in the water. One pup took one look and scooted right away from him. He hung out for awhile and then swam off. 5 pups on the rock off shore, 1 swimming. When I left zero seals on the beach. 5 people behind the rope and lots of people on the seawall. Everyone was climbing up and over the fence like it was normal. You would never guess that the easy access to the seawall was closed.

															I arrived late at 6:30 pm. Two large 12x12 canopies on western vedge behind rope. Music playing from one DVD (?) player. 4 Snorkeelers and children swimming. Later three adults entered on east side going toward caves. People walking freely everywhere. 4 seal heads bobbing up imn water. Nightmare in people climbing up the rails where the vstairs are on the seawall. Waves were heavy enough to splash over wall with olots of screams. Easy to clear people by telling them it is time for seals to come up on beach, however three seals tried to beach, but did not stay. Lifeguards in vicinity, but did not clear people off seawall.

706	8/27/2014	7:00 PM	Weds	Terri	0	3	0	0	0	0					Around 7pm a man whom I suspect has done it before walked along the water line for a bit then left, I didn't approach him as the people climbing up on the wall was probably why no seals were on the beach when I left at 730...
707	8/27/2014	7:15 PM	Weds	Terri	10	1	0	4	0	1	clr	80	70	rising	1 man walked on beach from one end to another with purpose, like he had done it before. I suspect he was one of the usual suspects i have heard about doing this before. I did not approach him but 1 seal did leave the rock, however with the activity of people climbing up and down the wall on the seaward side of the rope, it wasnt surprising.

															I spoke to the remaining people on the water side as the seals began to swim close to shore. One family remained on the seaward side until about 7 15 pm. As they began to leave, the adult male strode down to waters edge to rinse feet to put shoes on. Two seals had just come up on the water line, but flushed as he entered the water. Family left shortly thereafter. by 7:25, about 12 seals had come out of the water. Tourists were behind the rope, but taking flash photos.

FYI: A man had a drone that flew over my head while I was observing seals in the water from the seawall. I found the operator, and politely asked him about his drone. He told me that he was with his daughter, whom I saw previously, and that he was just using it for fun, but was taking videos/photos with it. He also told me that he used 4 batteries that could stay allow the drone to stay in the air for approximately 100 minutes at a cost of $2000 for drone and batteries. He said that the drone was not able to zoom in from far above, and that it would have to go lower to do that.

															Super moon so high tide will be high tonight at 9pm Male sea lion on beach near stairs with giant fish hook in the corner of his mouth with huge fishing lure hanging out. Seemed emaciated. According to lifeguard SW attempted rescue today, which failed. At 7:30 when I left 10 harbor seals were in the water and seemed ready to come onto shore. Male sea lion laying down by rock at bottom of stairs. 0 people on the beach. Lobster fisherman with 2 hoop traps at end of sea wall. 2 fisherman with poles arrived also.

The 3 buoys with parts of trap tons of rope washed up east side of beach wrapped in a giant ball of kelp...this is same one from other day had same #s...we spent an hour cutting and removing the rope, parts of trap so fun left soaked & smelled like seaweed. Putting one of the buoys on my tree for holidays.

Went beach searching found one tucked deep in a nook on cove beach & it was Nano. It was like finding a pot of gold at the end of a rainbow. The other lil one was on main cliffs in the brushes! While working on getting "Nano" rescued a sweetheart of a man named Jack came & took me to the lil one hidden in brush & a double rescue happened. Believe the one in the brush is "Lil Lamb". I thanked Jack had been searching for Lil Lamb and shocked how far she climbed away from colony. Both sea-lions alive getting urgent care Heavy black heart☐
